SQLyog V11 33 Ultimate With KeySQLyog V11 33 Ultimate With Key.txtThe present invention relates to a door lock structure for a vehicle and, more particularly, to a door lock structure including a leaf spring for elastically exerting a tension force on a U-shaped latch lever. As one of a door lock structure for a vehicle, a structure is known in which a lever is inserted into a hole formed in a vehicle body and the lever is resiliently biased by a leaf spring so as to protrude from the hole. A lock arm is attached to the lever and a lock ring is engaged with the arm to prevent the lever from turning. A cam plate which is connected to a door handle is rotated to lift the lever against the resilient biasing force of the leaf spring. The cam plate is connected to a striker mounted to a side surface of a door panel through a cam mechanism and the lever is moved into the door body by the rotation of the cam plate. An unlocking lever is provided for unlocking the lock mechanism and is raised by the rotation of the cam plate. In the above structure, the lever is resiliently biased by the leaf spring so that the lever is inclined inward of the vehicle body. The opening of the vehicle body is restricted, which causes a difficult assembling work because the lever is inserted into the hole having a size close to the outer diameter of the lever in the vehicle body. In order to obviate such a problem, a certain door lock structure is shown in Japanese Unexamined Patent Publication No. 10-97224, in which an insertion hole for a lever is provided on the upper portion of a vehicle body and a slanted surface is provided to incline a leaf spring in the inserted direction of the leaf spring. However, in the above door lock structure, in which the lever is inserted into the hole of the vehicle body, the slanted surface of the leaf spring is inclined inward of the vehicle body in the inserting direction of the lever. Thus, the inner wall of the hole is flat. In case of a stainless steel material having superior corrosion resistance, the inner wall of the hole is corroded and a rust is formed, which becomes the cause of a malfunction. Further, it is difficult to set the proper length of the leaf spring.UCLouvain (University of Louvain)
